THE RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Acting on the request of the prime minister, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, a national appeal is being launched on November the 30th, on behalf of the national emergency fund, for supplementary relief to be placed at the disposal of the Red Cross. The premiers of each province are endorsing this appeal and co-operating with the prime minister in asking every citizen of Canada to assist in this emergency effort.

The banks are to act as collecting stations and are preparing a small card to be displayed in all branches, announcing that contributions to the National Emergency Fund will be received there.

Individually, every citizen can stress in talking to friends the necessity for the appeal, on the ground that, while government measures are covering much of the need, there are special cases and situations in which a voluntary organization, unhampered by red tape, can act more efficiently and quickly than any official body.

The underlying principle of the campaign is that all funds raised in any province will remain in that province to the extent of one half, the remaining half becoming part of a national fund, so that special claims and cases can be dealt with in a special way. It is more or less assured that many of the provinces of eastern Canada, notably Quebec and Ontario, will make large contributions, the benefits of which will be derived by those parts of the west, and elsewhere, where the need is greatest.

FERNIE GIRL BECOMES BRIDE OF LLOYD CELLI OF COLEMAN

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at the Holy Trinity church, Fernie, B.C., on Sunday, November 15th, when Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Maffoli, of Fernie, was united in marriage to Mr. Lloyd Celli, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Celli, of Coleman, Alberta, Rev. Father Finnigan officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked a picture of loveliness in a gown of white satin and lace fashioned on silhouette lines and ankle length, also with a coronet of orange blossoms, while she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Denora, as bridesmaid, who was very charmingly attired in a gown of coral canton crepe, ankle length, and ornamented with rhinestones, with picture hat to match and a hip-line white coat. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern. The groom was supported by Mr. Jerry Borlebusch as best man.

Following the nuptial ceremony, a reception was held in the Italian hall, Lindsey Ave., where over a hundred guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. The hall was decorated with masses of flowers and foliage with colored streamers hanging from the ceiling to the bride's table, which was centered with a four-tier wedding cake surmounted by a silver vase of white heather.

The happy couple left on the noon train on their honeymoon, which will be spent at the coast and California points. The bride travelled in a striking ensemble of brown canton crepe. Her hat, shoes and accessories were in matching tones.

Upon their return they will be the guests of honor at a big reception to be held in Coleman, where they will take up residence. They were the recipients of many beautiful and valued gifts. The contracting parties are popular young people in the Pass and their many friends wish them every success and happiness in their wedded life.

Entertainment in the afternoon, Augmented in the evening by Arcadian orchestra, Columbus hall, Wednesday, November 25th.

PROTEST REGISTERED AGAINST HIGH-POWER LINE INTERFERENCE

At the regular meeting of the Blairmore Town Council on Monday night, a number of citizens—radio owners—registered protest against interference experienced on radios, caused by the high-tension line of the East Kootenay Power Co., which traverses about midway through the south section of the town, and the secretary was instructed to wire, requesting that some representative head of that concern take the matter up early as possible with the council. Suggestion was made that the line be moved to the south outskirts of the town and that interested parties be assisted and digging holes and moving the line, if agreeable to the company.

The minutes of previous regular meeting were approved, and a number of accounts were passed for payment.

Council decided unanimously to continue the cribbing along Lyon Creek about another 300 to 400 feet. W. Knight submitted plans for a proposed additional storey to be built over his premises at the corner of Seventh Avenue and Victoria street, to be used as a hall. Plans call for a floor space of approximately 25 x 115 feet. Plans were approved by the council subject to the town's building and fire area by-law being complied with.

Mention was made of the campaign being launched by the Red Cross, and the assistance of the council was asked for. Dr. J. W. Melvin and Judge Jackson, of Lethbridge, had been in the district, but were unable to meet the council or as yet arrange a local meeting.

Present at the meeting were: Mayor Farmer, Councillors Morgan, Fumagali, McVey, Oakes, Peressini and Beebe, and Secretary Kelly.

PRO: EEDINGS HALTED AGAINST DRUMHELLER MEN

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Nov. 17.—Stay of proceedings was entered in the action aiming to make members of the city council responsible for the support of unemployed.

Initiated by unemployed who were unable to obtain relief or work, the action was against Alderman J. W. Webb, Allan Hamilton, Edwin G. Wood, William R. Kelly and Lorne R. Achison. The direct charge against the aldermen was omitting to provide maintenance to indigent residents.

The five were remanded for trial following preliminary hearing, but today the department of the attorney-general ordered proceedings stayed, because aid had subsequently been given indigents.

A Tick At A Time.

Somebody has told a fanciful story of a salesman who was engaged in an attempt to sell a grandfather clock, telling the prospective purchaser that it would run for one hundred years and be just as good at the end of the period as at the beginning. The clock overhearing this remark began figuring out how many times it would have to tick in that 100 years, and decided a deep groan and began to complain "I can't stand it; I can't stand it," while a little cheery alarm clock on an adjoining shelf spoke up: "Cheer up, you don't have to do it all at once. Remember it is just a 'tick at a time, a tick at a time.'"

In these present days as many of us look ahead and see and contemplate the many difficulties to be overcome and the great problems to be solved we are apt to emulate the grandfather clock in its despair and exclaim: "We can't stand it; we can't do it." Looking at the sum total of the things to be faced and to be done, we become discouraged, forgetting that, after all, we are called upon to do only one thing at a time, and that that one thing is not beyond our ability or strength.

Furthermore, in the doing of that one thing immediately confronting us, we develop the ability and build up the strength which enables us to successfully tackle the next thing, and thus we go on from strength to strength, achievement following achievement, whereas nothing but weakness and failure would result from idle contemplation of the many tasks ahead, leading to discouragement which prevented even a start being made.

If at the inception of the project to build the Canadian Pacific Railway, financial difficulties and political opposition towards the Pacific Ocean, began to count the number of miles of track that were necessary and the millions of ties to be laid, not to mention the streams to be bridged, the tunnels to be bored, and the mountains to be climbed, they, too, might well have exclaimed: "We can't do it; it is too much." But they had the sense to realize that it was a case of laying down one tie at a time, spiking one rail at a time, and that every tie laid and every rail spiked helped to lay the next tie and spike the next rail. And so the job was done in record time, and the whole history of Canada and the Empire changed for the better.

And so it is with the individual life. Life goes on a "tick at a time." As babies we learn to walk a step at a time, thus preparing for the many millions of steps we will take throughout the years to come. We learn the alphabet a letter at a time in preparation for the multitude of words we later will require to use, and we laboriously recite that "one times one makes two, and two times two makes four," and thus we master the whole world of arithmetic, and in so doing find that nothing is impossible.

And in the same way, life goes on a "tick at a time" but success and achievement is not confined solely to thinking material things; often we regard material reverses and material losses as the "fatal" things of life, forgetting that health, contentment and happiness are the really vital things that matter! And these essential attributes of life are achieved just as material things are gained by, as the little clock said, "a tick at a time."

Grain Samples For Europe

Samples From All Parts Of The West Sent To European Traders

Samples of this year's western Canada grain crop, on which the prices offered by British and European traders will partly be based, have reached Montreal from Winnipeg and will be shipped immediately to most of the British and continental grain exchanges.

The samples were prepared at the office of the chief grain inspector at Winnipeg and are contained in strong close woven bags.

These samples were shipped by the British Grain Commissioners and are destined to the grain exchanges and grain trade associations in Germany, Holland, Italy, Belgium, France, England, Ireland and Scotland.

The samples, which are made up annually by the western grain standards committee in Winnipeg, contain grain from practically every district in the prairie west and give a fair indication of the quality of wheat which European consumers might expect in the filling of large orders. Specimens of each grade are included, and before shipment is authorized each sample is analyzed and approved by Dr. F. J. Birchard, chief chemist of the Board of Grain Commissioners' Research Laboratory.

Delayed Publication

Nellie McClung's new book, "Flowers For The Living," was delayed a little in appearance because of a typographical error, which, considering the writers' well-known total abstinenace views, looked like someone's idea of a lark. "Between the tall tapers," wrote Mrs. McClung in the first paragraph of the book. "Between the tall tapers," said the version that had to hastily be recalled.

Britain-Capetown Flight

Will Use Robot Pilot To Beat One-Hop Distance Record

Two Royal Air Force officers are actively growing a giant monoplane in which they hope to fly to Capetown, a distance of 6,000 miles from the airport in England, and beat the one-hop distance record now held by the United States civil pilots, Boardman and Polando, who flew from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, aboard their "plane Cod."

The men, Squadron Leader Oswald R. Gayford and Flight-Lieutenant Bett, hope to take off about the first of December. On their flight they will have the assistance of a "robot-pilot," a complicated affair of gyroscopic stabilizers which automatically holds a "plane on a set course in still air.

They will be required to pilot whenever they run into cross winds, as the "robot" has not yet been developed to a point where it can take care of deviations in course forced upon the "plane by the elements.

While one man pilots, the other may sleep, if he desires, on a lounge arranged behind the pilot's cockpit. The "plane" is a Fairchild monoplane equipped with a single Napier Lion water-cooled engine developing 530 horsepower.

In attempting to break the existing non-stop distance record, the British airmen must exceed the old mark of 5,011 miles by at least 100 kilometres.

Miller's Powdery Worms work so effectively that no traces of worms can be found. The pests pass away in the stool without being perceptible. They eat the entire worm, including the intestines, and nothing in the shape of a worm can find lodgement there when these powders are in operation. Nothing can be more thorough or desirable than their action.

An Equal Division

In an historical drama an aged king was blessed with two sons. He was pacing up and down the stage, with a weary, troubled look, exclaiming aloud, "On which of these, my sons, shall I bestow my crown?" when there came a voice from the gallery, "Why not 'ar-a-crown spile, guv'nor?"

The University of the Philippines is to add a school of fine arts, a conservatory of music, and a school of hygiene and public health.

Has Served Forty-Five Years

Inspector Cunning Of Royal Canadian Mounted Police Retires On Pension

With a record of 45 years service in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the R.N.W.M.P., Inspector W. A. Cunning, following a six months' leave of absence, will be retired in position at the end of that time, it was learned at the Regina headquarters.

Inspector Cunning tendered his resignation in October. He came from Toronto as a boy and joined the then Royal North West Mounted Police in 1885. He was promoted through the non-commissioned ranks until he has reached his present rank which he has held for a number of years. He has been district paymaster and quartermaster. He was also in charge of the weather bureau at Regina.

Inspector Cunning has the distinction of being the only man in the force for many a long period. Mrs. Cunningham is also a pioneer, coming to the west from England 49 years ago. Five sons served in the world war. Three of them were wounded and one was a prisoner of war for three years.

"THESE HARD TIMES"

The hard times and scarcity of money makes it more important of us to economize. One way to save on clothes is by renewing the color of faded or out-of-style dresses, coats, stockings, and underwear. For dyeing and Dyes. They are the most economical ones because they never fail to produce results that are better than new ones redyed with Diamond Dyes. They never spot, streak, or stain. They go on smoothly and evenly. They are safe for even a ten year old child. Another thing, Diamond Dyes never take the life out of cloth or leave it limp as some do. They are to be called "the world's finest dyes!"

Another Growing Industry

Exports Of Canadian Salmon Have More Than Doubled

Canada is replacing the United States in the British market for canned salmon and for the first nine months of the present calendar year, the Dominion more than doubled its exports over the corresponding period a year ago.

According to the end of September, according to the current issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the United Kingdom imported from Canada 102,000 cwt. of canned salmon, while imports from the United States totalled 96,000 cwt.

During the same period last year Canada's share was only 47,000 cwt., while that of the United States was considerably over 100,000 cwt.

British imported 262,000 cwt. of canned salmon during 1930.

Western Wheat Crop

Yield Of 240,070,500 Bushels Estimated For Canada In 1932

A yield of 240,070,500 bushels is the estimated wheat crop of the three western provinces, according to reports compiled by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association in its annual forecast.

The acreage on which the estimate is based is that compiled by the association early in the season, taking into consideration threshing returns.

The figures for wheat are 16,601,050 net acre, compared with 23,178,000 net acre used in the Dominion Government report, which on September 9, estimated a crop of 246,400,000 bushels.

AS SHE LOST FAT
SHE LOST PAIN

Like many others, this woman found that excess fat did not come alone. In fact, she thought certain trouble. She did not know that both troubles were due to a common cause—but she found that both gave way before the same remedy.

I have been a martyr to sciatica and kidney trouble for years. I took Kruscheen for about a month, which kept me from being a housewife. I looked for a loss of fat that was no good to me, and now after three months of Kruscheen I only go to the doctor once in six months. I am not in pain to say my pains have all gone, but I do say I'm wonderfully well, and hope to improve yet. —Miss E. P. Webster.

The six salts in Kruscheen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the waste products of the body to encounter the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, but surely. The pains of sciatica and kidney trouble are gone.

—Mrs. E. P. Webster.

Empire Broadcasting Plan

Will Erect Station In England To Broadcast Messages To Whole Empire

Without further delay, the British Broadcasting Corporation will begin plans for the erection of a short-wave broadcasting station at Daventry to which the whole Empire may listen.

Plans for the station are discussed at the last Imperial Conference but the difficulty of financing the project on present basis postponed the development. Now, however, need from an imperial point of view, coupled with a strong desire expressed throughout the Empire, especially from the crown colonies, determined the corporation to proceed without further delay.

The object will be to secure as many listeners as possible throughout the Empire at a convenient time. Details of the time arrangements will depend on experiments. Several wavelengths will be used in order to provide the best reception under varying conditions.

Schems May Work

British Have Idea To Keep Indian Tribesmen Quiet.

Non-violent methods to keep the tribesmen of North-western India quiet to be used by the British. Instead of bombs, an aeroplane is to be filled with a powerful loud-speaker, from which ordinary tones will emerge immensely magnified. The expectation is that the natives will think it is the voice of their god bidding them not to fight the mighty white man, who could not help killing some of them.

Bonus For Large Families

Each of the 10 families in Italy with the largest number of children will be given a five-room bungalow by the government of Rome, beginning on Christmas, 1932, it was announced recently.

In London, the principal development will be a new section filling a large part of the White City, Shepherd's Bush, for the first combined display of the great textile industries of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Last February for the first time there was a new section at the White City for the products of the cotton textile industry, while the British Artificial Silk Exhibition became to all intents and purposes part of the Fair by being held during the first week of the Fair at the Royal Albert Hall.

These two exhibitions, the Cotton section organized by the Lancashire cotton trade organizations, and the Artificial Silk Show were such a success that meetings were called of representatives of these and other textile industries and it was unanimously decided to make a joint display in 1932.

The lighter industries other than textiles will continue to be housed at Olympia where the British Marketing Board will have its display of the products of the British Dominions and Colonies.

The heavier industries, once again will have their display in the main motor permanent Fair Buildings at Castle Bromwich, Birmingham, and there less no less, in London, important developments are promised. One of the most important, involving still further extensions of the buildings, is a new section for cycles and motor cycles, their component parts, tires and other rubber equipment, and accessories of every kind. This section, which will be the first representative display of the British Cycle and Motor Cycle industry, is being organized by the Fair Management in Birmingham in co-operation with the British Cycle and Motor Cycle Manufacturers' and Traders' Union who will have an information bureau in the section.

Another new section at Castle Bromwich will be for quarrying and roadmaking plant, and in the organization of this the Fair will have the co-operation of the Institute of Quarrying which has in recent years organized an exhibition of this kind.

In many minor ways the overseas buyers will find the B.I.F. of 1932 more convenient and attractive than in previous years, and it is hoped for the time to make the B.I.F. a truly international exhibition.

Admittance during business hours is by invitation only. Invitations can be obtained from The Office of H. M. Trade Commissioner, 703, Royal Bank Building, Winnipeg.

NEW DOMESTIC LOAN WILL BE LAUNCHED SOON

Ottawa, Ont.—The Dominion government will make an offering of bonds to the Canadian public, probably on November 25, according to the Prime Minister, before he leaves Ottawa for a holiday in the Rockies.

"The sum of one-half will be 'Dominion of Canada National Savings Bonds' and the other half will be the Department of Finance described as 'The Bonds'."

"The Bonds" is the term organized by a general management committee of which Sir Charles G. Dawson, president of the Bank of Montreal, is chairman, and it will be nation-wide. The Department of Finance is placing large orders with the king printer for prospectus and application forms, the initial regulation for the former being for 1,500,000 copies.

"The treasury is closely watching the movements of security prices, for while this issue is to be a domestic one, the day-to-day value of bonds in Canada is influenced by the values placed on Dominion of Canada securities in New York."

This is the first announcement of the impending loan, from official sources, for some time. It has been forecast that the loan would be for $225,000,000 bearing interest at 5 per cent, but indications are that the exact amount to be asked for had not yet been definitely decided upon, and $150,000,000 may be nearer the mark.

Ask Rate Revision

Application To Imperial Shipping
Committee For Lower Marine
Rates To Churchill

Ottawa, Ont.—Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, has announced that the Canadian Government has made formal application to the Imperial Shipping Committee for a revision of marine insurance rates on the Hudson Bay route.

This committee announced the length of season and the rates last spring. The season was about six weeks in length, and the rates considered high.

Since a test movement of two shipments of wheat has been carried out, both ships made the trip to Churchill without delay or difficulty and complete data on their voyages are in the hands of the Imperial Shipping Committee. Upon the strength of this test movement a downward revision of insurance rates is being sought. The committee will have months to work on this reference before the 1932 season opens.

Toronto, Ont.—Leaders of the Christian movement in Japan have been in touch with the Japanese foreign office at Tokyo, in an effort to forestall further troubles with China in Manchuria, according to information received at the foreign mission office of the United Church of Canada. This was conveyed in a bulletin from the National Christian Council of Japan.

Executive committee of the National Christian Council of Japan appointed Dr. Y. Chiba and Hon. D. Trouble In India Fomented By Communists, Says Sir Arthur Currie

Toronto, Ont.—General Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, told members of the Empire Club he was firm in the opinion that Communism is responsible for much of the trouble in India.

"The world of Communism prefers unrest in India," he said, "and that world is our enemy, spiritually and materially."

Sir Arthur, who visited India last year, said, "India is seething with political unrest, concerning which considerable unanimity of opinion prevails among the Indian population—a unanimity that is strengthened by family castes and family attachments."

Economic Conference

Other Countries Will Be Asked To Join In Canada

Ottawa, Ont.—Announcement by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of the acceptance of the invitation of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett for the assembly of the Empire, the postponed Imperial Economic Conference, was heartily welcomed in the capital. While no official statement was made, it is understood that the governments of other parts of the empire are likewise sympathetic to the proposal of Prime Minister Bennett.

About the middle of July or perhaps a week later, is viewed as the probable date of assembling of this conference, of its nature to meet in the Canadian capital, to discuss affairs pertaining to the advancement of intra-empire trade. By that time, it is fully expected, New Zealand will have held its general elections and all parts of the Empire will be in a position to be represented through ministers of the crown, an obstacle in the case of New Zealand and Australia which caused the postponement, by mutual agreement of the Dominions, of the conference which had been called to meet in Ottawa on August 12 last. The Canadian Parliament, expected to convene in the latter part of January, will probably prorogue in ample time to afford the completion of the arrangements for the visit of the United States.

The date of the visit to Canada of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, to discuss intra-empire trade matters preliminary to the Ottawa assembly, is not definitely known. Mr. Thomas is to visit other Dominions to continue his discussions. With Mr. Bennett leaving for a holiday, it is possible that Mr. Thomas may not come to Canada until the latter part of December or early next year.

British Parliament Opened

Fading Scene Of Splendor King
Reads Speech From Throne

London, Eng.—In the great Chamber of the House of Lords, glowing with scarlet, gold and precious stones, the King officially opened Parliament on November 10.

The day began with showers of rain, but along the whole route from Buckingham Palace to Westminster, great crowds lined the road cheering as His Majesty passed by. And, as the King, according to the custom of the House of Lords, they faced a scene of splendor. Uniformed ambassadors were grouped on the right, and the centre of the floor was so packed with peers that two former viceroys of India, Lord Irwin and Lord Reading, only with difficulty found seats. Along either side of the chamber the wives of the peers sat wearing royal ransoms in diamonds and other costly jewels.

There was a brief pause while the Gentleman of the Black Rod summoned the railings of the House of Lords, then, in a clear voice, His Majesty read the Speech from the Throne. It contained a reference to receipt from the Canadian Government of an invitation to an Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa, an invitation "which has been welcomed by my ministers and will be considered in a most sympathetic spirit and with earnest desire to come to some mutually advantageous arrangement with the governments of my Dominion."

Landslide Buries Five

Men Preparing To Stop Work When
Accident Occurred

Pierreville, Que.—Five men lost their lives when buried under a landslide near here. They were employed on excavation work on the shores of the St. Francis River in Nicolet country.

The accident occurred as the men were preparing to quit work in the 25-foot-deep hole in which they were digging. The excavation was completely filled by the landslide. Bodies of the victims were recovered seven hours after the men were trapped.

Lord Ashfield On Commission

London, Eng.—Lord Ashfield, chairman of the London Underground Electric Railways, has accepted an invitation of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, to become a member of the commission which will investigate Canadian railway and transport systems. He will leave for Canada this week.

Calgary, Alberta.—With approximately 6,000 head shipped from Alberta since the opening of the season in the spring, export of cattle to the Old Country is now suspended. Alberta ranchers to a great extent, according to J. I. Bowden, M.P., for Calgary, in September 1,000 head were shipped, while total export from the Dominion was about 22,000 head.

Another Prominent Alberta Woman Dead

Montreal, C.—"Edwards Of Macleod, Mrs. Edwards To Friends" London, Alberta—Mrs. C. G. Edwards, prominent in the National Council of Women, died November 10, at her home in Macleod.

Miss Edwards was one of the five distillers, Alberta women, who were invited to the Senate to give a speech in the Senate.

She was vice-president of the National Council of Women and a member of the legislative committee of the National Council. Mrs. Edwards is a recognized authority on women and children.

League To Deal With Trouble In Manchuria

London, Eng.—Sir John Simon, new Foreign Secretary, is going to Paris for the League of Nations meeting concerning Manchuria, and it was announced that U. S. Ambassador Charles G. Dawes will observe the proceedings for the United States.

In London the opinion is that the issue will be brought down to earth at this session and some sort of definite plan for dealing with the situation in Manchuria may be evolved.

One way out, it is suggested here, would be for the League to appoint an international investigating commission whose work in the Far East would require several months during which the belligerents might cool off and the dispute might be settled by peaceful negotiations.

Failing this, an alternative would be an attempt to force Japanese obedience to the League's dictates but no authoritative commentator would say he thought the League was likely to adopt such a course.

Geneva, Switzerland.—Japan has resumed the offensive in the Noman Bridge area in Manchuria. China declared in an urgent communication to the League of Nations. The message said that Japan's troops had advanced their lines and were 20 kilometers on the road to Tsitsihar.

The Chinese were retreating, the communication continued, under bomb attacks and shell fire from the Japanese forces.

Two more notes from Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese member of the League of Nations Council, claimed that Japanese military authorities in Manchuria were working systematically to displace local Chinese authorities with groups under Japanese control.

Christian Smuts, South African statesman and scholar, and Lord Inchape, British economist and industrialist, were selected as the candidates for the rectorship of St. Andrews University to succeed Sir Wilfred Grenfell, Labrador medical missionary, whose term of office has expired.

Foolish Economy

Debt Blamed For World-Wide Depression

London, Eng.—High points touched by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in his speech at the first business session of the new House of Commons.

A system of "crazy economy" in regard to war debts and reparations has brought about "world-wide depression." It is impossible to degree that without regard to circumstances certain blocks of gold shall be transferred from one nation to another without resulting in impoverishment of the nation which hands over the gold and ultimately of that which receives it."

Premier Laval's visit to the United States should lead us to an understanding between France and Germany. "In the full and final understanding, however, every nation involved must be a party to the agreement."

Unable To Act

Sir John Simon Now Deprived From Acting On Canadian Cases

London, Eng.—The acceptance by Sir John Simon of the foreign secretaryship in the National Government automatically deprives several important Canadian interests of his legal services, particularly in cases before the Privy Council.

It was intended he should lead for Quebec province in the radio control appeal, the hearing of which is expected to take place early in December, but it is now presumed some Canadian counsel will appear in his stead.

LITTLE REAL PROGRESS MADE TO END WAR

Montreal, Que.—Armistice Day, 1931, 13 years after the war, "found little real progress toward the goal of peace," said Sir Arthur Currie, Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian corps in France, in a speech on disarmament here.

Hope that had sustained the combatants during the dark days of a scathing attack on the new government for what he called its vague policies and upon the Prime Minister himself, for the part he played in forming the National Government, "this incongruous document, full of nothing from beginning to end."

His gesture came in the midst of a scathing attack on the new government for what he called its vague policies and upon the Prime Minister himself, for the part he played in forming the National Government.

Two more notes from Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese member of the League of Nations Council, claimed that Japanese military authorities in Manchuria were working systematically to displace local Chinese authorities with groups under Japanese control.

ALBERTA LEADS AS THE GREATEST GRAIN PRODUCER

Ottawa, Ont.—Alberta, replaced Saskatchewan as the greatest wheat producing province of the Dominion this year, with a total estimated yield of 135,000,000 bushels, the report of the Bureau of Statistics showed Thursday, November 12.

In 1930, Alberta's wheat yield was 132,000,000 bushels. Saskatchewan has an estimated yield of 117,000,000 bushels, as compared with 193,322,000 of a year ago. Manitoba shows a drop from 45,276,000 bushels to an even 27,000,000 this year.

Drouth took its toll in both Saskatchewan and Manitoba during the crop season. The estimate per acre for Alberta this year is 16.9 bushels as against Saskatchewan 7.9, and Manitoba 10.5.

The 1931 acreage sown to wheat, taken for the first time from census returns, in the prairie provinces is given at 20,352,722 acres; oats, 8,311,967; barley, 3,202,727; rye, 711,709; and flaxseed, 618,561. The acreage last year was: Wheat, 23,960,000; oats, 8,286,000; barley, 4,745,000; rye, 1,370,000; and flaxseed, 571,000. The acreage for 1932 is estimated at 11.4 bushels per acre in all the provinces, based on the summer's census returns, shows a total of 26,115,726 acres sown to this major grain as compared with 24,897,900 acres in 1930. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics crops report is issued recently states.

The estimated yield per acre is placed at 11.4 bushels as compared with 16.0 in the season of 1930.

Menace Of Armaments

The Very Root Of War, Says Sir Robert Borden

Ottawa, Ont.—The menace of armaments is the very root of war, and was never so starkly brought out, said Sir Robert Borden, Canada's wartime Prime Minister in a Remembrance Day message here. More than ever the menace of armaments oppressed the world today he asserted.

"Can we estimate humanity's irreparable loss in the sacrifice of the generation that went forth to conflict nearly two decades ago?" he questioned. "In how many countries are children, who did not share in that terrible, a similar horrible experience, had been shattered. 'The prospects of permanent peace are no more assured today than they were in 1918,' he stated.

"I am sure you will join me," Sir Arthur stated, "in praying that the next disarmament conference is a success, that it succeeds in bringing about an honest and universal reduction in the king and wounded power of arms. It will do no good, fact, to demand the same effect, if one nation disarms and others do not. Disarmament must be honest, must be mutual, must be universal."

"Thirteen years have gone by and great has been our disillusionment. It is true we have tried to do something which we hoped would prevent war. For ten years we have had the League of Nations, whose definite purpose is the promotion of peace and the settlement of international controversies by peaceful means."

"We have our Locarno and Washington pacts, we have the Kellogg-Briand treaty which regulates the determination of more than 60 countries including the United States and Russia to come to an agreement to war for solution of controversies and disputes as an instrument of national policy," he went on.

"The history of the past has taught us, and the history of the present confirms most emphatically, that these solemn engagements are easily disregarded. Witness what is now happening in Manchuria between China and Japan. Whatever the irritation by China, and I have no doubt it has been great, Japan has broken her word and prostituted her pledge by her war-like actions in the last month. With inexorable effrontery she has defied the League of Nations, which seems to be as powerless as it has been weak."

Sir Arthur felt a great mistake had been made in the League in inviting the representatives of the United States of America to join the Council. That political move seemed to have loaned larger in the eyes of the League than the struggle itself—"or did they know that the League would fail and wish to have the United States of America associated with the failure?"

IMPRESSIONS OF SOVIET RUSSIA

Frank Freeze, one of the past presidents of the Calgary Board of Trade, and former alderman of that city, addressed a very appreciative gathering at last Friday's meeting of the local Board of Trade, his subject being "Russia." Mr. Freeze, who is a past governor of Rotary District No. 4, attended the International Rotary convention in Vienna this summer, and, following convention, he was one of a party of United States and Canadian Rotarians who made a trip through Europe, and spent some time in Russia.

Russia, stated Mr. Freeze, was much greater in area and population than United States and Canada combined, and as they were escorted through the cities and districts visited, and gained their knowledge through interpreters, he would speak of things as he saw them, and from information gathered from the people he met through the medium of his Russian guides. Looking over the crops, they found that it was hard to tell whether there was a good crop, and while on the co-operative and state farms they were using modern machinery, it did not present the same picture as Western Canada, but in many ways things on the farms were more or less the same as here. It must be remembered that up to 1905, Russia was never blessed with free institutions, and while there were no horses or plows, farming was carried on in a very primitive manner, all this denoting a lack of organization.

Going through Poland, they were met at the border of Russia by an armored train, with a regiment of soldiers and barbed wire entanglements. After certain preliminaries, during which much money as the tourist intended to spend was changed into Russian money, and a c p g v n f i t, they were taken on the Russian train to Moscow. Their plan in this respect was to determine the purchases made by foreigners at the Russian stores. The train was drawn by a wood burner engine, about the same rate of speed as a truck line here. The train was dirty, as in Russia cleanliness is evidently not considered as a virtue. At Moscow, the party was met by two representatives of the Russia Soviet Government, who were anxious for the tourists to see their country.

The women were sturdily built, in fact took part in the work, the same as the men. They were laying cement in Moscow, while the industries were working twenty-four hours a day; the people working for four days and resting on the fifth. There was so much work to be done in Russia, that naturally people were employed. Buildings had been allowed to tumble down, while he had brought back a map showing the railroads and auto roads in Russia, which would be found amusing and interesting to Canadians. The people were cheaply clad, in cotton materials, with some wool, but no silk. The government tries to make people wear and use Russian goods. Wheat is shipped out for machinery, while the stores, which handle meat, make no attempt at refrigeration. Cleanliness is also lacking in stores, while working men pay on a different basis to professional men. Flies and dirt do not bother the Russians, everything, including meat, being handled in a very crude manner, no attempt being made to handle goods in packages, or in a manner called for by pure food laws.

Soldiers march to and fro at the Red Square, singing revolutionary songs—a half million of them being quired, as the Russians say, for the day when the capitalist nations attack the Russian people. The government offices were surrounded by walls, while there were very few automobiles in Russia. The speaker told of the bodies of the Czars being on view, and a trip to the divorce courts, which reminded him of the book, "See Russia and Die Laughing." There were lady registrars, who handled the candidates for divorce or marriage. Parties could still be married or buried by church, but this practice was being discontinued. A visit to the wonderful cathedrals was most interesting, as the people ridiculed God and all religion. Lenin was their only god, as they claimed he brought the Russian people out of bondage. Divorce was secured very easily; in fact, the party listened to two divorce actions being settled in a very brief visit one morning to the divorce court. Marriage was also looked upon in a much lighter vein than in other countries.

A visit to one of the prisons, in which there were 1200 people, elicited the fact that Soviet Russia paid their prisoners part wages so that they could support their families during their terms in prison. There were rest homes for the workers, the big houses of the past being used for this purpose. Workers were allowed to stay at rest homes for a week, while married men could bring their families one day in a certain length of time.

The Communist party of two million people is in absolute control of Russia, while life was not valued very highly in Russia. Russia was up with its Five Year Plan, and speaking with different engineers, the party found that it took ten times the people in Russia to do the same amount of work as in Canada or the United States. Under the collective farming plan, the individual farmer was being swept away. Jealousies entered into this phase, and in the past killings were numerous, and while villages were wiped out. However, the government now persuades the people that collective farming is in the best interests of themselves and their country. The Russians do not want any pictures of their soldiers taken, and pictures had to be completed in Russia. The party visited the place where the Czar formerly carried out his work, and saw all the splendor of former days in Russia, including the wardrobe and uniforms, pictures of the former Russian royal household.

The party visited one or two collective farms and found that farmers were disappointed in losing their individuality. Living conditions were bad, but one has to see them to appreciate the difference between Russia and Canada. The Russian people, with the exception say of one-third of the population, seem to exist solely to get enough to eat and wear, being easily satisfied and long suffering.

Backed up by an army of five hundred thousand men, there is just as much definite control as a few hands in Russia as it is claimed exists in Italy. No one used to living in Canada or the United States would be happy or appreciate living in Russia.

Leaving Russia, the party crossed into Finland, where the same armored train and regiment of soldiers plan existed on this Russian border, and when they arrived in Finland, one of the Canadians spontaneously began to sing "God Save The King," in which everyone, including the members of the party from the United States, heartily joined. The lumber industry in Finland was practically put out of business by the Russians dumping their lumber, the same as they dumped their wheat on the world's wheat market.

During their trip, concluded Mr. Freeze, the party saw a lot, and formed different ideas, and in his address, he had endeavored to convey to those present a few of the impressions formed during their sojourn in Soviet Russia. —Dunc. Drumheller Review.

Everyone makes mistakes, but mistakes may be made the basis of success. They often point the way not to go, the way not to act, the material not to use, the method not to employ. There would be little progress were no mistakes made. The chief harm from mistakes is from covering them up or trying to cover them up, and in failure to profit by them. —The Vent.

LETTERS TO OUR DOCTOR

Dear Doctor:

I notice in the Queer Query column that you answer the simple problems which are bothering readers of your monthly message.

Would you be good enough to tell me the difference between a "Printer's Pi" and "Mother's Pie".

Yours in trouble,
J. ARNOLD DAVISON.

Dear Mr. Davison:

Really I am surprised at you, for you of all people should know that there are many differences between Printer's Pi and Mother's Pie.

In the first place Mother's Pie is very seldom a mess, but Printer's Pi always is. Again, Mother's Pie is made from raisins, while Printer's Pi is made from droppings. You aware by Mother's Pie and at Printer's Pi. Mother's Pie is scrambled before it's made, Printer's Pi is always scrambled. You could drop a Printer's Pi from the top story of a skyscraper, but just try that with one of Mother's Pie.

And finally, the sight of a Printer's Pi gives you a heavy feeling in the pit of the stomach, leaden so to speak. But Mother's Pie—Wow! —Doc.

HOW TO DO IT

While so many others are telling you how to do it, our friend King of the Claremont Local Press offers a solution for the hard times, and King has as much right to have chips in the game as H. G. Wells, or any other high-brow. This is his suggestion:

"We don't want to hear any more speakers talk about the terrible conditions of depression unless he has some solution to offer. We ourselves can at least offer a solution—and it's not all Russian either. Our premise would begin by recognizing the fact that no man possesses ability and talent one thousand times, or even one hundred times, greater than any other man; thus, it is not a healthy social condition that any one man should be allowed an income in such proportions.

We would organize a national industrial corporation and assume a half interest in all business and industrial organizations where ten or more people are employed, not excepting the credit and security functions of the country. We would establish a bureau of standards whose duty it would be to investigate values as they prevail in other lands so that our people could be adequately protected both on home products and imports.

We would survey the income of the nation and see if it could not be adjusted so that the masses could enjoy security and have life more abundantly."

"I do hope you keep your cows in a pasture," said Mrs. Newleyed as she paid the milkman.

"Yes, madam," replied the milkman.

"We'll keep them in a pasture."

"I'm so glad," gushed Mrs. Newleyed. "I have been told that pasteurized milk is much the best."

IS THIS WHY SOME OF US ARE NOT IN JAIL?

Perhaps you would laugh at the idea that owning a dog or cat or a canary might keep you from going to jail. It does seem rather far-fetched, doesn't it?

Yet there are close to 10,000 dogs in the United States, besides great numbers of cats and birds and other pets—enough so that every boy and girl can have at least one. But of the men who today are serving sentences in prison, less than one in every hundred had a pet when he was a boy.

Can it be possible that owning a pet does something to a boy or girl so that he or she is less likely to become a law-breaker? It is quite possible. Having a pet teaches you kindness. A dog can give you as good lessons in loyalty, courage and cheerfulness as the best teacher in the world. And these are the qualities that make good citizens.

Maybe that old dog of yours, whom you so much as a playmate, is more valuable than you dreamed. Perhaps he is an important factor in shaping your character. At any rate, he is worth the best treatment that you can give him—Ex.

Marvellous Mexico

DOWN in Mexico, about forty miles from the city of Tehuantepec, lies the Hacienda Claviles, an estate of 12,000 acres. It was given to Hernando Cortes by the King of Spain many years ago. Here he erected a long, white walled house which is still occupied. Employed upon the grounds are many men and women. Some are old, some are young and some are mere children.

Diego, a fine and worthy chap, the young son of the owner, is a little and comely, is one of the servants in the kitchen. Diego loved Lucita and Lucita loved Diego. Don Julio, Diego's father, was quick to see what was happening, not only about the great white walled house but in the little Zapotec village where most of the hacienda's help lived. The other servants hoped Don Julio would, as Diego, was their favorite.

Then there came a time when Diego, accompanied by his boy friends, came to Don Julio's little thatched cottage to ask for the hand of Lucita in marriage. The father was dignified and courteous for a time. "No" he said finally, but firmly, "you cannot marry Lucita." "Why not?" said the father, "I am sure her heart is good, but always be careful to your daughter." Then the old man blustered and stormed, "You are too ugly, go and marry a monkey!" The argument became louder and more furious until Diego was dragged away by his friends.

For a few days Lucita, wretched and becomingly dressed and carrying a small basket, a bundle of dried beans, stood in the cross in front of her father's house. Diego appeared riding upon a pony and followed by his friends whose horses trotted along behind.

As the cavalcade was about to rush down the trail with the captured bride, Don Julio, who had been watching from a window, dashed his machete right and left, crying and demanded. He was too late.

After Lucita had remained three or four days with Diego's aunt in a neighboring village, her father found her and with much injured dignity demanded that the young man give her one more chance. The old man, weeping, fled and went through the country without a break. Don Julio was the most interested participant and, if possible, the happiest man of the party. In fact several times he had been fearful of the outcome of the courtship but had always watched with growing interest and fondest hope.

The ancient Mexican customs, inherited from old Spain, however, had not observed.

This interesting incident, related at some considerable length by Emma-Lindsay Souler, who visited the hacienda a few months ago, gives one but a mere squat at marvellous Mexico. It serves, however, to show a great interest in the world's exhibition not being prepared by Mexico for the World's Great Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina in 1932. It will occupy a frontage of seventy-five feet. To see it will be next best to a visit to the country itself.

Bubbles

THE late Canon Davison was well and favorably known in many parts of Canada, especially in the West, not only as a great churchman but also as an instructive and entertaining lecturer. During one of his lectures to illustrate one of his points, he told the following story:

The MacBoy (fictitious, of course), a merchant in a small town in the West, was known for his large appetite. He was invited to represent the local Board of Trade at a banquet in Regina, and when the evening arrived Tim, the cook, was called. Some of the help left a small yellow cake of soap on the table near where Tim sat. Thinking that it was a piece of cheese he gobbled it down. In a few minutes he turned to the general canon, who by this time had taken a seat beside him.

"Say, Canon," said he, "I've eaten a piece of soap. Should I see a doctor?"

"No, Tim," came the reply. "I don't think it's necessary. There will be no harm in that than that you'll be blowing bubbles, pretty bubbles in the air."

"That's O.K. with me," answered Tim, "I've been doing just about that all my life—chasing something with nothing in it."

How often is it too true that many of us waste energy doing either one or the other—blowing pretty bubbles or chasing them? We dream of the things we'd like to possess but we do nothing substantial to secure them. In fact, we are concerned they are merely bubbles, pretty bubbles in the air.

The merchant dreams of a large and successful business but he exerts scarcely sufficient energy to spend a dollar when it voluntarily passes his way. The lawyer goes to the courthouse a great case before the court, but when he has to go to present his client he fails to present to a country Justice of the Peace, and so with a lot of others.

One of the winners of the world championship for wheat said that hundreds of farmers had just as good grain in their granaries as that with which he won the title of "World's Wheat King." "Their trouble," said he, "is that they lack the energy and persistence to make a success, persistence being the secret of success." It is to be noted, however, for the sake of Canada's reputation, that too many crop producers will not merely blow bubbles nor chase them in their attitude towards the World's Great Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina in 1932. Quite true, the cash prizes are more numerous and much larger than have ever been offered before in the world's competition, too, open to the whole world. But there are over 1700 of these awards and since the '32 undertaking is an all-Canadian undertaking, farmers in every part of the Dominion, and of them, will put out the bubble of the world's champion and get down to business and make a real effort to win the share the Canadian grain and seed merits.

It's a world's world, though. I suppose without the bubble chasers it wouldn't be just right. Somebody will always sing:

"I'm forever blowing bubbles—pretty bubbles in the air;
They fly so high, nearly reach the sky;
Then I'm always crying, I've lost bubbles in the air."

Five Communists, at Drumheller have been sentenced to pen terms of one to two years, on charges of being members of an unlawful assemblage, carrying offensive weapons, being armed within one mile of a public meeting, or assaulting police officers. One of the gang, John O'Sullivan, was an unsuccessful candidate for election as an alderman at Calgary.

FURTHER ACTION THREATENED

A despatch from Ottawa states: "Indications multiply that the Dominion government and the provinces, other than Ontario, will proceed with further action against Communism. It is indicated that swift steps would be taken to deport as many of the convicted Reds as are not native-born. In the departments of justice, state and immigration it was said that cancellation of certificates of naturalization granted to several foreign-born men of the Toronto gang would be effected at once. In addition, the minister of immigration has asked for a complete record of evidence gathered, in the case of one of the Toronto Communist prisoners, with a view, possibly, to immediate deportation. 'Why should Canada trouble to deport a native born Canadian?' asked the minister. 'We have a kick coming when we discover some cheap scab sending out of town for his printing, some man who owes his living and every cent he has to the fact that Fernie has been a profitable town to live in, and we have not said very much; but when we find a number of people buying coal out of town, fairly taking the bread and butter out of the mouths of our miners and their children, we feel it is time to call a halt. We understand the miners also feel that some action should be taken in the matter and propose to pass a resolution demanding the dismissal of any employee of any business firm or industry of the city who is so disloyal to his community as to persist in this policy.

The family stared in dismay. "Rice-vermin?" they cried in chorus.

You are thoughtful, you English! It had been I who had experienced your adventures today. I should be fit for nothing. As to dancing the same evening—"ma foi, non! Voyons, I shall leave you to rest a little."

She nodded smilingly and left the room. Once in the corridor outside, however, the smile vanished as though it had been wiped off her face by an unseen hand. Her curving lips settled into a hard, inflexible line, and the soft, disengaged look eyes grew, and finally turned and turned.

She passed swiftly along to her own suite. It was empty. The little Count was downstairs, agreeably occupied in comparing symptoms with a fellow health crank he discovered.

With a quick sigh of relief at his absence she flung herself into a chair and lit a cigarette, smoking rapidly and exhaling the smoke in quick nervous jerks. The long, pliant fingers which held the cigarette were not quite steady.

"Tout va bien!" she muttered restlessly. "All goes well! Assurance his punishment will come. She bent her head. "Qu' Dieu le veuille!" she whispered passionately.

She took a final and not altogether displeased survey of herself in the mirror before descending to the big "suite" where the fancy-dress ball was to be held. She had had dinner served to her in her room so that she might rest the longer, and now, as there came wafted to her ears the preliminary grunts and squeals and snatches of melody of the hotel orchestra in process of tuning up, she was conscious of a pleasant glow of anticipation.

There was nothing strikingly original about the conception of her costume. It represented "Autumn," and had been designed for a fancy-dress ball for more than a year ago, after the death of Jeanne, and modestly shuttered down all gaiety and mirth at Blairstown. But, simple as it was, it had been carried out by an artist in colour, and the filmy diaphanous layers of brown and orange and scarlet, one over the other, zoned with a girdle of autumn-tinted leaves, served to emphasize the russet of beech-leaf hair and the topaz-gold hazel eyes.

Madame de Varigny's glance swept the girl with approval as they entered the great "suite" together.

"But it is charming, your costume," Reparted Hervé, turning to the Count, who, as a swashbuckling d'Artagnan, was getting into difficulties with his sword. "It is not difficult—this costume d'automne!"

The Count retrieved himself, and, hitching his sword once more into position, poured forth an unembarrassed stream of Gallic compliment.

Madame de Varigny herself was looking supremely handsome as Cleopatra. Jean reflected that her eyes—slimorous and profound, with their dusky frame of lashes and that strange inapplicability she always had in them—might very well have been the eyes of the Egyptian queen herself.

The "suite" was filling up rapidly. Jean, who did not anticipate dancing overmuch, as she had made but few acquaintances in the hotel, watched the colorful, shifting scene with interest.

There was the usual miscellany of a masquerade—Pierrots jostling against Kings and Cossacks, Marie Antoinettes flaunting their jewels before the eyes of denude-fans, men with here and there an occasional costume of outstanding originality or merit of design. Contrary to her expectations, however, she soon found herself with more acquaintances than she had at first, and, newly enmeshed from the rigour of her year's mourning, she threw herself into the enjoyment of the moment with all the long-repressed enthusiasm of her youth.

It was nearing the small hours when at last she found herself alone for a few moments. In the exhilaration of rapid movement she had completely forgotten the earlier fatigues of the day, but now she was beginning to feel conscious of the strain of the morning's skating, followed by that long, exhausting struggle through the blizzard, had imposed upon even young bones and muscles. Close at hand was a deserted alcove, curtained off from the remainder of the room, and here she found temporary respite, a sudden thanksgiving to a big cushioned divan.

The sound of the orchestra came to her ears pleasantly dulled by the heavy folds of the screening curtain. Vaguely she could feel the rhythmic pulsing, the sense of movement, in the "suite" beyond. It was all very soothing and reposeful, and she leaned her head against a fat, pink satin cushion and dozed, at the back of her mind the faintly disturbing thought that she was cutting a Roman senator's dance.

Presently she stirred a little, hardly aware of some disquiet that was pushing itself into her consciousness. The discomfort grew, crystallizing at last into the feeling that she was no longer alone. For a moment, physically unwilling to be disturbed, she tried to disregard it, but it persisted, and, as though to strengthen it, the recollection of the defrauded senator came back to her with increased insistence.

Slowly awake at last, she opened her eyes. Somewhere the senator presumably was standing at the entrance to the little alcove, and she rushed into consciousness—stricken speech.

"Oh, have I cut your dance? I'm so sorry—"

She broke off abruptly, realizing as she spoke that the intruder was not, after all, the senator come to claim his dance, but a stranger wearing a black mask and domino. She was sure she had not seen him before amongst the dancers in the "suite," and for a moment she stared at him bewildered and even a little frightened. Vague stories she had heard of "hold-up" by masked men at some fancy-dress ball recalled themselves disagreeably to her memory, and her pulse quickened as her heart beat.

Then, quite suddenly, she knew who it was. It did not need even the evidence of that look of "pound" hair above the mask he wore, just visible in the dim light of the recess, to tell her. She knew. And with the knowledge came a sudden, disturbing sense of her tumult.

She half-rose from the divan.

"You?" she stammered nervously. "Is it you?"

"He whipped off his mask.

"Who else? Did this deceive you?"

"It is I, Hervé," turning to the Count, who, as a swashbuckling d'Artagnan, was getting into difficulties with his sword. "I've been hunting for you everywhere. I'd almost made up my mind that you had gone to bed like a good little girl. And then my patron, saint—or was it the special devil told off to look after me, I wonder?—prompted me to look in. 'Et vous voilà, mademoiselle!' How are you feeling after your exploit in the snow?"

He spoke very rapidly, in a light half-mocking tone that seemed to Jean to make the happenings of the afternoon unreal and remote. His eyes were very bright, almost defiant in their expression, holding a suggestion of recklessness, though he was marked out somewhat of which his inmost self refused to approve but which he was nevertheless determined to carry through.

"So you did 'call to enquire,' after all?"

As she spoke, Jean's mouth curled up at the corners in an involuntary little smile of amused recollection.

"So I did call after all?" He looked puzzled—not unnatural, since he had no clue to her thoughts. "What do you mean? I came—" he went on—"because I wanted the rest of the day which you promised to share with me. The proceedings were cut short rather abruptly this afternoon."

"But how did you get here?" she asked. "And—why did you disappear so suddenly after we got back to the hotel this afternoon?"

"I got here by the aid of a pair of excellent skis and the light of the moon; the snow ceased some hours ago and the surface is hardening nicely. I disappeared because, as I told you, if you gave me this day, it should bind you to nothing—not even to introducing me to your friends. 'I should have had to present you to Monsieur l'Inconnu,' remarked Jean without thinking.

"Yes." He met her glance with smiling eyes, but he did not volunteer his name.

He had made no comment, uttered no word beyond the bald affirmative, yet somehow Jean felt as though she had committed an indiscretion and he had snubbed her for it. The blood rushed into her cheeks, staining them scarlet.

"Be my pardon," she said stiffly.

Again that glint of ironical amusement in his eyes.

"For what, mademoiselle?"

"For a moment, a rising indignation at his attitude, she could not understand it; his seeming to have completely changed from the man of a few hours ago. Then he had proved so good a comrade, been so entirely delightful in his thought and care of her, whereas now he appeared bent on wilfully misunderstanding her, putting her in a false position just for his own amusement."

Scientists Take Big Chances When Making Some Investigations

Scientists, in their own way, are nearly as intrepid as the more spectacular winners of Victoria Crosses, and it is not their fault that every line of research does not involve the risk of death or mutilation. When such a subject does present itself, however, the investigator seldom hesitates.

A case in point is that of Van Campen Helmer, a famous big game hunter, an authority on deep-sea fishes, and a valued member of the American Museum of History. The curious subject he has chosen to investigate is which sharks really attack human beings and their methods in offence and defence.

To get to grips with his inquiry he sailed some time ago to the Bahamas with the intention of getting a specimen of the shark he had heard of, and which he was marked out somewhat of which his inmost self refused to approve but which he was nevertheless determined to carry through.

The result is that he has been swimming in tropical waters.

Two or three rather eccentric research inquiries come from the United States. One of them, carried out by an efficiency expert, resulted in the world-shaking conclusion that typists are the best work while seated at desk.

Just why Professor G. H. Vanash, of California University, weighed the breath of a hive of bees would be rather difficult to explain to a non-scientific audience. But he did it, and the world is now in possession of the information that the average hourly loss of weight by respiration of the whole hive of bees is, in winter, 36 milligrams of an ounce, and in summer twenty-five times as much.

Swedes Manufactured Iron and Steel During Middle Ages

That Sweden was a pioneer country with regard to iron and steel manufacture during the Middle Ages has now been proved by a medieval writ recently found, dated March 25, A.D. 1360. The document is in Latin and was written at Västerås, in the Swedish province of Dalecarlia, where iron manufacture is still carried on. The document states that one-fourth of the Västerås furnace belonged by right to one Olof Toerilsson, whose existence as well as that of the other signatories, has been proved by genealogical research. Mining has, of course, been carried on in Sweden from the times immemorial, although the methods of earlier ages were rather primitive. This last discovery proves satisfactorily that some 600 years ago the iron-masters of Dalecarlia had introduced the furnace method in the Swedish iron industry.

Messrs. Dave and Bill Oliver and M. L. McKinnon returned Sunday evening from a successful big game hunt in the country north and west of Edmonton. Their trophies consisted of three large moose and a bear. The moose would average around 900 to 1000 pounds each and carried very good heads.

The members of the I.O.D.E. are making an appeal for children's warm clothing. If anyone has a coat, underclothing, stockings, shoes, overshoes, rubbers, etc., that their children have outgrown, but are still in good condition, the I.O.D.E. would appreciate them, as calls are coming daily. Any desiring to contribute, please communicate with Mrs. Banan, convenor of the relief committee.

A local clergyman, driving out in the country, came upon a small lad bent over the engine of an old car, swearing violently and loudly. It was an occasion for reproof and the substance of the clergyman's remarks was that the boy should quit his profanity, go to church, and learn something better. The boy broke in "Darn it all mister, you're wasting your time, for it's like this: Mom's religious, and ever since Sis has been going with the teacher she's got religion, too. Then dad he came down with a spell of it after a revival meeting. If I go and get it, who in blazes will drive this car?"
